For use when listening to Labour politicians condemning the Tory cuts and privatisation:

the same privatisation policies Labour followed for 13 years

the same policy of harsh cuts that Labour planned

In government, New Labour followed a relentlessly right wing path. They privatised stuff Thatcher had not dared touch. They refused to bring rail back into public ownership even though a big majority wanted it. They failed to repeal anti-trade union laws. They waged illegal war on Iraq and Afghanistan. They pushed ahead with privatising the NHS and with forcing academies on pupils and parents. They helped wreck the Copenhagen climate change talks. In other words, they governed as Tories.

Now they are in opposition they suddenly claim to have seen the light. The Tory cuts and privatisations are wrong - even though they were Labour policy. Tory academy plans are a disaster - even though Ed Balls was ramming academies down our throats to the end.

And what will Labour do if they get back into power? They will forget their current convenient pretence that they are on the side of ordinary people, and govern as right-wing Tories again.

Doesn't it make you sick?
